On occasions, additional hours may be required, including weekends to ensure the wellbeing of children.

You will possess an understanding of Aboriginal culture and demonstrate an understanding of the legislative, policy and practice requirements relating to Aboriginal children, families, and communities, including the Aboriginal Child Placement Principle and the programs and initiatives that support its implementation in child protection practice.

About Child Protection

Being a part of the child protection team means making a real change to the lives of others, keeping families safe and strong. The work of the Practice Leader is complex, challenging, and rewarding. Practice Leaders need to have specialist child welfare knowledge and the ability to engage, and support other practitioners in engaging with children, young people and their families.

The Practice Leader will support practitioners to work in a statutory environment where they must exercise legal delegations and functions pursuant to the Children, Youth and Families Act 2005 (Vic).

The statutory nature of the work requires working with families and children in the family home or other locations and the transportation and the supervision on contact.

The Act provides the legislative mandate for the department to protect children and young people from abuse and neglect using best interest principles, decision-making principles. This mandate involves:

- receiving reports
- conducting investigations
- intervening if it is assessed that a child needs care and protection
- taking matters before the Children's Court
- supervising children on child protection orders
- determining case plans (including stability plans, cultural plans and therapeutic treatment plans) for the safety and wellbeing of children, and
- delivering case practice and case management services for children and young people who are either living with family or in out of home care
